

Clinical Assistant Professor Department of Occupational Therapy

The Department of Occupational Therapy, College of Public Health and Health Professions at the University of Florida, invites applications for a full-time (1.0 FTE), 12-month non-tenure track Clinical Assistant Professor position. The successful applicant will serve as faculty for the Bachelor of Health Science degree program, and engage in teaching, research, and service activities as assigned. This position will be responsible for teaching and should have a broad knowledge of the major chronic conditions and disabilities as defined by the World Health Organizations classification of functioning, disability and health.

Applicants must have a relevant doctoral degree. Preferred candidates are licensed/license-eligible as an occupational therapist in the state of Florida. Experience teaching at the undergraduate level in health professions or public health is essential.

The Department of Occupational Therapy (<http://ot.php.ufl.edu/>) is a national leader in occupational therapy education and research. The department has active research programs in the areas of driving rehabilitation and community mobility, and learning disabilities, as well as outstanding academic and training programs that include an entry level Masters in Occupational Therapy program, a Doctor of Occupational Therapy program to start in Fall 2018, and a Ph.D. in Rehabilitation Science program. The department is a leader in the NIH-funded K12 Rehabilitation Research Career Development consortium and is home to the Florida Institute on Disability and Rehabilitation; Institute for Mobility, Activity and Participation; and the Center for Research on Telehealth and Assistive Technology.

The University of Florida is a comprehensive doctoral research-extensive university that includes a full range of academic departments and programs (www.ufl.edu). It has a long history of established programs in international education, research and service and is one of only 17 public, land-grant universities that belong to the Association of American Universities. The College of Public Health and Health Professions is part of the University's Health Science Center, which also includes the Colleges of Medicine, Pharmacy, Nursing, Dentistry, and Veterinary Medicine and provides a wealth of opportunities for research collaborations.
